Mapping our family: Putting them in their place

Summary

This paper explores how to use modern map sites for family history research.

Abstract

Discover what the new generation of map sites offer for family history research. These sites are using the latest technology to combine databases, Google maps and historical maps to present data in a new and exciting way. Discover how to use map overlays in conjunction with historical maps, GPS relevant locations and pay a virtual visit to the exact place where your ancestor lived.
